Borchetta On Big Machine 2.0

Last week's simultaneous departure of Chairman/CEO Scott Borchetta from the HYBE-owned BMLG and launch of his two-imprint, one-promotion team new entity raised many questions. HYBE's plans began to come into focus with this morning's announcement of the Jake Basden-headed Blue Highway Records (Breaking News 2/17). As for Nashville Harbor and the new Big Machine, Borchetta answers many of the top-of-mind questions below.

CA: You're getting to clean-slate a label design for the first time since you launched the original Big Machine. How does it look different in 2025? How is it the same?

SB: Well to begin, we have a running start! Twenty-plus years of doing, learning, evolving, and now with the ability to hit a total reset. I feel 100 pounds lighter. When a company matures and becomes as big as it is now with a huge finance department, royalty accounting, legal, etc., there was so much operationally that took up my day. Now, with our new agreement with HYBE, I outsource most of those responsibilities to them. And I know all the players ... as I hired them! They're amazing. But now I don't have to manage the operation. We will be able to escape so many hurdles that we had to learn as a startup. We know what we need, and we know how to get it.

Regarding how it looks different in 2026, it's completely different! The only constants that are the same from 20 years ago are great artists, great music and figuring out how to build the fanbase. Jennifer Nettles of Sugarland said something so simple but profound several years back when the sea change of social media was really washing over us: "It used to be, someone would hear my music and want to know more about me ... now, they want to know about me before they'll listen to the music!" That is so true. Our entire value structure has changed, and therefore new and exciting financial opportunities lay elsewhere in addition to the music.

How difficult were the decisions around staff and artists?

Anytime you lose people and go through the seismic shift we all just experienced, it's incredibly difficult. That team was magical together and they truly care for each other in a really beautiful way. During our year-end meetings in December, we all knew change was coming, but we didn't know what it would be nor how it would look. When I walked into the big

Q4 CDM Drivetime Leaders

Following the analysis of the format's Q4 drive-time leaders in PPM markets last month, Country Aircheck has also compiled Country's top performers for the quarter from Nielsen Audio's 44 Continuous Diary Measurement (CDM) markets. Cumulus ceased subscribing to Nielsen effective with this release, so several stations, including last quarter's leaders in mornings (WIVK/Knoxville) and afternoons (WKKO/Toledo) no longer appear.

With WIVK absent after leading morning drive for the past seven quarters, WUSY/Chattanooga claims the top share in the daypart for the first time since Q1 2022, thanks in part to a 9.0 to 10.1 jump. WUSY's Ken

OFF THE RECORD

Tape Room Music and Red Light Management-signed Beau Bailey takes Country Aircheck through the experience of having his first two radio singles, Blake Shelton's "Stay Country Or Die Tryin'" and Hardy's "Favorite Country Song" (both released on April 11, 2025), go No. 1 last month. Bailey's songs have also been cut by Kane Brown, Dylan Marlowe, Parmalee, Cole Swindell, Hudson Westbrook and others.

BEAU BAILEY

It was definitely crazy how it all shaped up at the same time. It's just God doing his thing. I believed in myself as much as I possibly could, but there's always a little part of you [in doubt] until something seals the deal. It's nice to have proof of concept that it really is possible for me, because I've seen all my friends do it.

I checked their position every morning as soon as I got up as both songs were climbing the charts. Me and my buddy Ben Williams, whose "6 Months Later" went No. 1 [in between Bailey's two hits], were chart buddies the whole time, checking in with each other three or four times a week.

I'm not pursuing an artist deal at this moment. I'm honestly enjoying where I'm at very much, but it's a possibility down the road. I did it for five years right out of college, and really enjoyed the live aspect of it. [Bailey was a member of Universal Music Group signed pop-rock band The Revelries.] I've been writing songs since I was 15, but being in a band taught me how to collaborate with other people and hustle it out, and was a really awesome experience.

It was so much fun writing "Favorite Country Song" at a songwriting camp. I found myself sitting next to Hardy and Ashley Gorley, two of the best to ever do it, and it was off to the races at that point, like everybody was playing ping-pong, throwing out lines to see if they would stick. It was fast and easy because those guys are such geniuses. I think I snuck in the line, "Grease in the skillet goes pop, pop, pop."

"Stay Country Or Die Tryin,'" was the first time my childhood best friend [Sony Music Nashville/Disruptor artist] Graham Barham and I had worked with Drew Parker and Sam Ellis. Nothing really stuck for a while, and then we talked about how we all grew up super country and decided to write the most redneck thing we could and see what happens. The hook just kind of fell out from the heavens. God was like, "Here you go."

Graham and I owe a lot to our hometown, Monroe, LA. It definitely shaped the way we write. We decided at 15 or 16 over some baked beans at Podnuh's Bar-B-Q in Monroe that we wanted to do music for real.

John Mayer influenced me as a songwriter. I saw him live for the "Where The Light Is" tour when I was 14 or 15. He and Dave Matthews inspired me to pick up a guitar, and then Ed Sheeran was a big lyric guy for me. I grew up on The Fray, Kings Of Leon, Luke Bryan and Jason Aldean, whose "Fly Over States" was the first riff I ever learned on guitar. Eric Church's Outsiders Tour in Bossier City, LA, was the most badass thing I'd ever seen. It made me feel like I could run through a wall. That's the hodgepodge of music I grew up listening to.

studio room last Thursday with all of them, knowing it was going to be the very last time we'd all be "Big Machine," it was tough. They all knew that I fought for them to be together for as long as I could. But the only constant is change ... and the new model that HYBE is building will be very robust. It's just going to be different.

Your new staff and roster is already substantial, and walking away with your Big Machine brand is significant. Did you have to write HYBE a check?

I cannot comment on the economics of the agreement, but I can tell you that HYBE's Chairman Bang, Isaac Lee, Jason Lee and Jenni Pfaf were all incredibly gracious and understanding throughout the entire process. There's always going to be give and take, that's why it's called a negotiation, but I think both sides are very happy with the outcome.

How are you different when working for someone else vs. working entrepreneurially?

I do my best work without any confines. I love working without a net

— as an entrepreneur, a race driver, what have you. My dad was fiercely independent. I'm very driven with what I get passionate about. When I'm an employee, I program myself differently. I program myself to try to be a follower. It's not natural for me to follow, but it is natural for me to continue the great desire to learn. That's the on-off switch for me. As long as I feel I'm learning, I'm good. But within that, I find myself holding back.

How are you different/better/changed as you establish Big Machine 2.0?

Twenty years of experience! We sometimes joke, "some people truly have 20 years' experience ... and some people have one year's experience 20 times." When you look at the wild swings we've had in 20 years, I promise you, it's 20 damn years! Haha. I'm better because I never stop learning and I never stop listening. I have 20 more years of amazing relationships, successes, failures, experiences. Now, I get to shed that skin, take the best of the best and get rid of the rest.

Speed round: Who owns the buildings?

I own the buildings.

Did you get to keep any catalog?

I have the new frontline releases.

Are you funding the new operation, or taking on new partners?

A little of both.

What's going to happen with the CRS lunch?

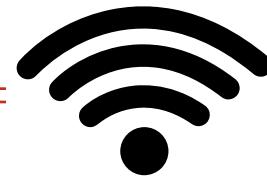

We're going to knock it out of the park! I'm very proud as to what that lunch showcase has become, which is a "must see." Think of the artists that have broken out at that event: Riley Green, Carly Pearce, Brett Young, Jackson Dean, Midland ... and superstar performances by Garth Brooks & Ronnie Dunn, Rascal Flatts, Tim McGraw, Thomas Rhett, Martina McBride, Lady A and more. Last year we launched Preston Cooper and he received two standing ovations! We have some killer new performances in store. And it's a great time for me to visit with everyone. I truly look forward to it every year.
