Big Loud, Wallen, Langley: YE Preview

Big Loud is the Top Overall Airplay Performer for the fourth consecutive year, powering Big Loud to its third straight win as Label of the Year. Wallen posted 33% more airplay points than the year's runner-up, Jelly Roll. Wallen charted nine songs in 2025, with five of them peaking in the Top 15. Four of those hit No. 1 for a total of seven weeks, including "Love Somebody" at three weeks and "I'm The Problem" for two. "Just In Case" and "I Got Better" each spent a week on the top of the charts. It should be noted that all five of Wallen's Top 15s were No. 1 hits with "Lies, Lies, Lies" hitting No. 1 on the final chart of 2024, while its peak position in 2025 was No. 2.

Morgan Wallen

Ella Langley

Wallen leads a Top 10 Performers list that includes only three who made the 2024 Top 10 – Wallen, Mr. Roll and Luke Combs. New to this year's Top 10 are Dylan Scott, Jason Aldean, Jordan Davis, Riley Green, Ella Langley, Jessie Murph and Koe Wetzel – the latter two on the strength of this year's No. 1 song, "High Road." Langley was the Top Female Artist, LoCash were Top Duo/Group and John Morgan was the Top New Artist. See this year's top overall artists and top 20 songs on pages 5 and 3, respectively. And see the full year-end Top 100, Top Performers in Male, Female, Duo/Group and New Artist categories in Country Aircheck's upcoming December print issue.

Elsewhere in the issue, CMA Awards week is recapped, with this year's Broadcast Awards winners sharing stories from the week. Major Market Personality Chris Carr from KEEY/Minneapolis discussed his ploy for smuggling a photo of too-pregnant-to-travel co-host Sam Sansevere into the official acceptance moment. "I may have made a slight, yet not too specific inference that this was a posthumous deal," he laughs. "In the end, he was totally cool and we're all so happy she made the shot!"

We Had Some Help: In addition to being three-time Label of the Year, Big Loud is celebrating the 10-year anniversary of launching its label division. "We had a long enough runway to take chances and be Looking for an unusual gift for the country music lover in your life? Country Aircheck is back to help with this year's list of the 13 quirkiest items on artists' websites priced at $50 or less. No need to thank us, just send over some Reba tater tots when you make 'em.

- Chris Stapleton You Should Probably Leave doormat $50: Not looking forward to entertaining this holiday season? This flocked mat with a less-than-inviting message from Stapleton's song title should do the trick.
- Reba McEntire Tots Collection $35: This kit features almost everything you need to make the singer's favorite tater tots at home, including an apron, red basket, branded wax paper and a copy of her Not That Fancy album. Spuds sold separately.

bold," says Partner/CEO Seth England. "As I look back, the only crime is under-dreaming." Winning airplay label of the year was "the loftiest goal," according to EVP/Promotion Stacy Blythe. "Still, reaching it within the first 10 years blew our minds."

Longtime staffers share favorite moments, England explains what Big Loud 2.0 looks like, and everyone weighs in on a culture that can lead to some bizarre moments. "I've hit and had to use an Australian accent during an awards show day, which was pretty embarrassing," says EVP/GM Patch Culbertson. "You'll see a Big Loud staff member walking backwards at a concert, and you know they hit odds earlier that day."

Elsewhere, the year's top stories are recapped and label promotion execs preview music priorities for 2026. Finally in The Interview, BMG President/Frontline Recordings for The Americas Jon Loba explains his expanded role and why he's taking Nashville with him to Los Angeles. "For years in Nashville we've had executives from other genres – whether it's the partner side or the record side – say that the community and relationships we have in Nashville are very special," he says. "It always struck me as strange for that to be a magnet for people wanting to be in our genre but then didn't occur in others. When I took this job, I wanted to prove that you could have that kind of culture outside of country."

Loba also addresses the continually shifting target for reaching a mass audience. "Engagement on socials is going down," he says. "It'll never go away, but younger generations always rebel against what their parents did. At some point, the kids are going to go, 'I can't believe my parents put every minute of their life – including what they ate – online for the world to see.' Generation Alpha is pulling back from that. Not only is vinyl having a resurgence, but CDs. I heard in CRB board meetings that for the first time, applications to broadcasting schools are way up. Younger generations want a more personal, high-touch experience."

The December edition of Country Aircheck arrives in digital and print versions next week.
